The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has announced an eight-member task force headed by its former Deputy Governor Ms. Usha Thorat to examine issues related to offshore rupee markets, and, recommend policy measures to ensure stability of the external value of the domestic currency. The panel will assess the causes behind the development of the offshore rupee market and study its effects on the rupee exchange rate and market liquidity in the domestic market. The panel will also examine how international financial services centres can help in addressing the concerns. The panel will submit its report by the end of June 2019. RBI has been guided by the objective of developing deep and liquid on-shore financial markets that act as a price setter of the rupee globally.

RBI allows WLATM operators to source cash, generate income from ads

In a bid to enhance the viability of white-label ATMs (WLATMs), the RBI has allowed them to buy wholesale cash from RBI and currency chests, source cash from any scheduled bank, and display advertisements pertaining even to non-financial products/services within the WLATM premises. Further, banks can issue co-branded ATM cards with the authorized WLATMs, and, may extend the benefit of ‘on-us’ transactions where the customer/cardholder and ATM are of the same bank to their WLATMs. The permission given to WLATM operators aka WLAOs in December 2016 to source cash from retail outlets, has been withdrawn. WLAOs can buy wholesale cash, above a threshold of one lakh pieces (and in multiples thereof) of any denomination, directly from its issue offices and currency chests, against full payments. They can offer bill payment and interoperable cash deposit services, subject to technical feasibility and certification by the National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI). They can display advertisements pertaining to non-financial products/services anywhere within the WLATM premises, including the WLATM screen, except the main signboard.

Regulator’s Speak

Digital payments have witnessed 9-fold increase over last 5 years: RBI Governor

At the NITI Aayog’s FinTech Conclave 2019, Mr. Shaktikanta Das, Governor, RBI said, “Over the years, RBI has encouraged greater use of electronic payments so as to achieve a “less-cash” society. Retail electronic payments have witnessed about 9-fold increase over the last five years. Banks no longer have a monopoly over payment services. Affordability, interoperability, customer awareness and protection are areas that have come into focus”. However, he also added that, “with the fast pace of technological changes, non-banking entities are co-operating, as well as, competing with banks, either as technology service providers to banks, or by directly providing retail electronic payment services. Going forward, RBI will set up a regulatory sandbox, for which guidelines will be issued in the next two months. A regulatory sandbox will benefit fintech companies by way of reduced time to launch innovative products at a lower cost”

The Credit-Deposit Ratio is used to assess a bank’s liquidity by comparing a bank’s total loans to its total deposits for the same period. The CDR is expressed as a percentage. If the ratio is too high, it means that the bank may not have enough liquidity to cover any unforeseen fund requirements. Conversely, if the ratio is too low, the bank may not be earning as much as it should be.
